Cool and Gallogly Are Prominent
In Play of Cornell Football Team

GALLOGLY. COOL.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Cool and Gallogly, center and tackle of the Cornell team, have been prominent in the games played by the Cornell football team this year. The Cornell team plays Madison November 14 and will play the season with Pennsylvania Thanksgiving day at Ithaca.

"Gosh, it ain't fair to those other fellows," he said, "I might bust their bones with one fell swoop."

"Take a chance Mike," taken a chance said Gallogly.

Well, Mike continued in the game, but Mike wasn't the same Mike of earlier in the season. Mike showed too much gentleness in the game. Mike made openings for his back field men whenever called upon to do so, but when he did he usually flared his eyes out of position and then asked his foe to "pardon me old pal."

And then came the Carlsberg game. Mike found himself opposed to Busch, the deposed captain of the Indian club.

Busch didn't size up as any more powerful in Mike's eyes than did some of the other foes against whom Mike had been pitted, and Mike during one of the opening plays, attempted to shoulder Mr. Busch out of the way instead of running into him. Busch just about as hard as he could ram.

Mr. Busch was very much surprised at Mike's early conduct. He couldn't quite "make" Mike. He puzzled over it for a few minutes trying to figure out just what Mike was trying to spring on him. Mr. Busch it may be stated, didn't know that Mike's actions were influenced by tender regards for the physical welfare of his foe. He thought it was some trick Mike was attempting.

As stated, Mr. Busch tried to figure out just what Mike was putting over on him. He failed to figure it out and dismissed the question from his mind. He set about playing football the way football should be played.

Well, on the Monday following the Pennsylvanian game, a modern Hercules was noticed flitting across the campus. He wore a huge bandage over his head, his eyes were black and blue, the flesh around them were so swollen that it almost blotted out the sight.

There was a huge gash on the forehead of this modern Hercules; there were bruises on his body; there were aches and pains in every joint and one knee was so swollen that it made walking a laborious task.

"Who's that fellow?" queried a spec later.

"Mike," answered a student.

"Mike, did you say? It doesn't look like Mike."

"No, it doesn't but it's Mike just the same. I was in the dressing room a little while ago and I know that it's Mike because I was close enough to hear Mike's voice and the voice came from the same fellow that you see doing that morning."

"Street one hit Mike?"

"No a fellow named Busch, did it."

In conclusion it may be stated that just as soon as Mike returns to normal, Mike is going back at footballing again, and it may be added that the very next game that Mike opposes will run the risk of going to the hospital for six months or so.

Many here enjoyed the Myopia Club Hunt here on Tuesday afternoon.

On Monday evening the Atlantic Literary Club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Berry at their home on Ross Beach road.

On Tuesday afternoon the Federated Club met at the vestry of the Congregational church. Mrs. Burlingham of Exeter gave a lecture on Club Work. The Every Other Tuesday Club, Ideal Club and Crescent Club were present.

Rev. Mr. Meix of North Hampton occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church on Sunday.

Tuesday evening the regular Young People's mid-week prayer meeting was held in the vestry of the Christian church. Union service.

The Misses Alice and Hattie Russell of Union, Maine, who had been in attendance of the Teachers' Convention held at Portland last week, were the week-end guests of their aunt, Mrs. Chauncey Woodman of Exeter.

The Ladies Aid of the Congregational church will hold a supper and entertainment in the vestry this evening. The entertainment committee consists of Miss Frances Hemmick, chairman, Misses Hilda Berry, Hazel Berry and Ruth Varrell.

On Thursday evening the Crescent Club will hold an invitation whist and dancing party at Rye Town Hall.

Henry Concanon has resumed his studies at the Portsmouth high school after a week's illness.

The Federated Clubs of Rye have arranged for a series of entertainments during the winter.

A FINE PUBLICATION

The Master Mate and Pilot, the official publication of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, for October, contains several important local items from Piscataqua Harbor, No. 83, and a very interesting article entitled "A Day in New Bedford," by Captain Warren N. Phinney, president of the local branch of the organization. The magazine has been placed in all local news stands and a copy donated to the public library for a year.

Apples are so plenty that they are being sold to the cider mills for a very low figure. Good No. 1 Baldwin apples may be bought for seventy-five cents to a dollar a barrel and with the barrel $1.25 is being asked.

WHEN HEADACHY
TAKE CASCARETS
FOR THE BOWELS

To-night! Clean your bowels and end headaches, colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now. You're bilious! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched. Do wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile, not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and inflame. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with Cascarets, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Nov. 5.—The labor market for the month of October, according to the state Free Employment Bureau in this city, continued to be depressed, and the supply of men and women is enormously in excess of the demand. The demand for help has dropped 45 per cent less than last October. The daily demand for help for the twenty-five working days has been 50, while the number of places reported filled has been 42. There has been an increase in the demand in some branches of the skilled male help. This demand has been for carpenters, painters and building tradesmen, with a slightly increased demand from the boot and shoe and the printing industries. There are a large number of engineers, mechanics, firemen and skilled mechanics of all kinds out of employment. Business in the unskilled male labor is practically at a standstill and very few men have been placed in positions.

Boston, Nov. 5.—Educators of New England will come to Boston Friday and Saturday for the 29th annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools to be held in Jacob Sleeper Hall, Boston University. On Friday evening at 6 o'clock there will be a dinner of the Association at the Hotel Vendome. The guest of honor will be Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education for the State of New York. After dinner speakers are: Dr. M. H. Martin, president of Boston University; Lewis Perry, principal of Phillips Exeter Academy; Dean Sarah Louise Arnold, Simmons College; William A. Shanklin, president of Wesleyan University; John M. Thomas, president of Middlebury College, and Commissioner Finley. The following addresses are to be given Friday at 4 o'clock: The Place of Culture, by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard College; "The Place of Discipline Training," by Professor Edward L. Thorndike, Teachers College, Columbia University; "The Place of Specific Preparation," by Professor Ernest Hocking, of Harvard. Reports of committees and election of officers will be held Saturday morning.

Boston, Nov. 5.—Some fifteen girls of Simmons College have organized a walking club for the purpose of visiting all the historical and picturesque spots of Boston and its surroundings. The officers are Gertrude G. Hawsey, president; Hazel M. Cornish, vice-president; Alice M. Wheeler, treasurer; and Clara L. Munger, secretary. Every Sunday afternoon these girls will see Boston in this way.

Boston, Oct. 5.—We have 42 wounded in this little corner of Brittany alone," writes a personal friend of Miss Mabel T. Hardman, chairman of the National Relief Board of the American Red Cross, from Val Pieuil Dinard. The letter is a pathetic appeal for more hospital supplies, particularly, and pictures vividly describing the conditions in some of the improvised hospitals. "Even if we had the money," she says "it would be impossible to buy the things we need most over here. Wools are very scarce and anti-tetanus serum is very difficult to get. Cotton is disappearing."

DAILY SPORT LETTER

New York, Nov. 5.—Peace in the League, I would estimate one year distant.

It's like years for peace. They want peace right now. But at this time conditions are such that there cannot be peace unless one side or the other makes big concessions. And neither side is willing to do this.

Organized baseball doesn't think that the Feds have forced it into a position where it should make any important concessions to the Feds. Organized baseball is willing right now to take the Feds under its wing and give the Federal League a big honor league status. The Feds refuse to listen to such a plan.

The Feds feel they have forced organized baseball against the wall and that it is only a question of time before they'll have organized baseball groaning under the concrete and yelling for mercy. Feeling thus, it isn't at all likely that the Feds will give up the fight until they have succeeded in their campaign—the abolishing of organized baseball.

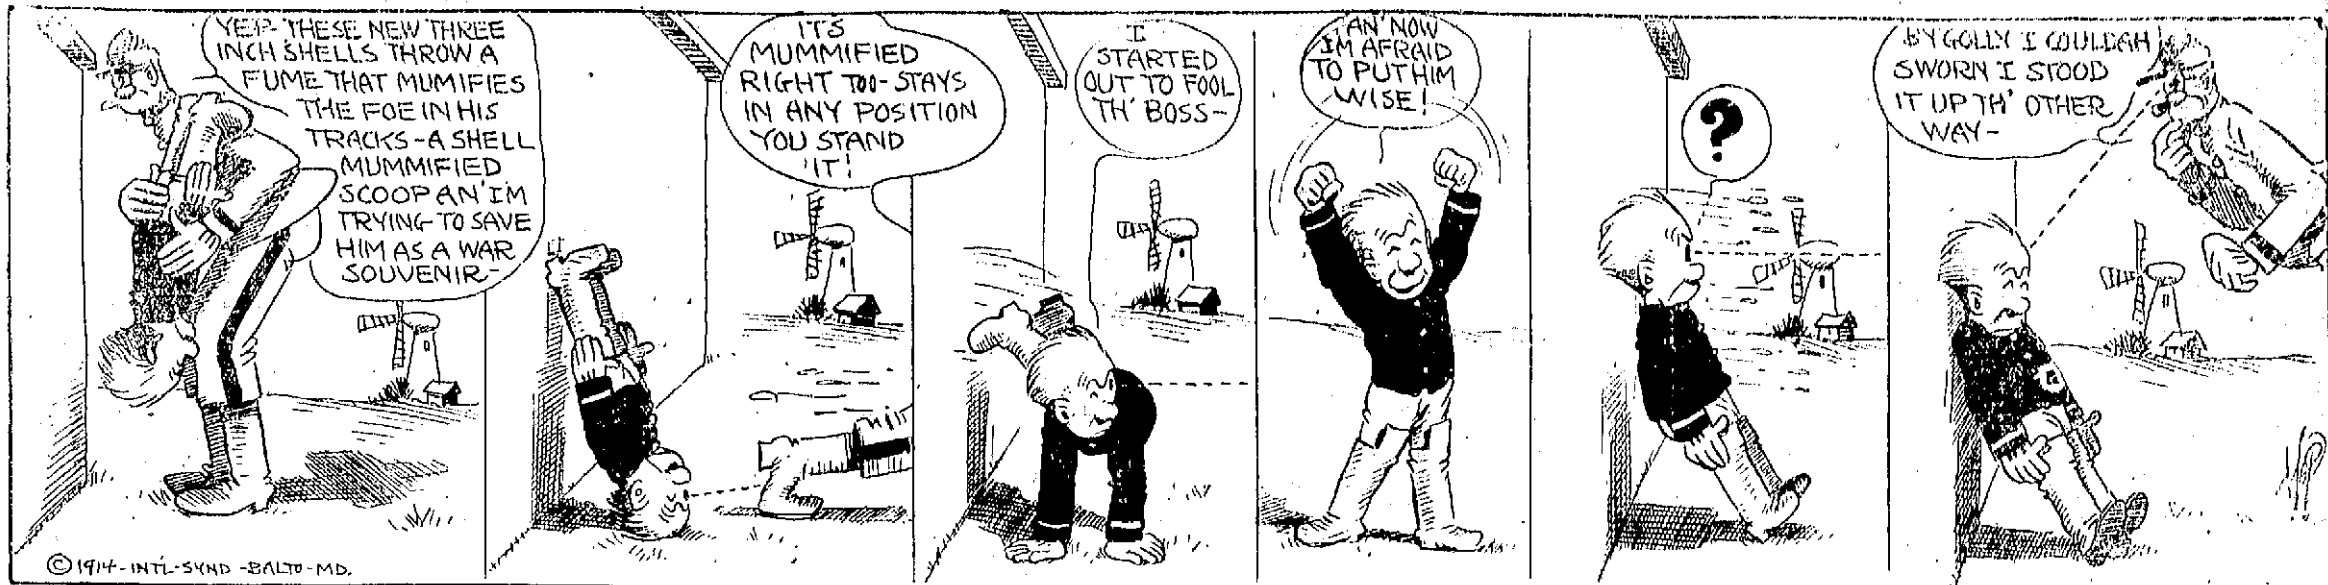

In both factions there are magnates who are

LATE RETURNS INCREASE
REPUBLICAN VICTORY

House and Senate Are Overwhelmingly Republican.-Spaulding's Plurality 12,386.

Returns on Wednesday showed the election of 75 Republicans to the House of Representatives and 35 Democrats. The same towns two years ago elected 60 Republicans and 60 Democrats, the difference in the total number being due to the classification of towns. These figures show a net loss to the Democrats of 43.

The State Senate will be overwhelmingly Republican. The election of 15 Republicans, six Democrats and one Progressive seems assured by the latest returns. Only two Senatorial districts are unaccounted for and the probability is that Republicans are chosen in both.

Complete unofficial returns from all the 290 towns and wards in New Hampshire give Spaulding, Republican, for Governor, 46,290; Noone, Democrat, 33,814; Spaulding's plurality, 12,386.

For United States Senator—Gallinger, Republican, 41,677; Stevens, Democrat, 31,444; Gallinger's plurality, 7,533.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES.

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., Nov. 4.—President E. T. Fairchild, addressing the students in chapel today, said: "We need here at New Hampshire new and modern dormitories, a college commons where all students may get their meals, and twice as much money as ever before for running expenses." "We need these things," declared the president in a burst of applause, "because in five years this school will have 1,000 students."

Men students are now depending on fraternities and a few boarding clubs for their meals. The women students live in the two college dormitories and have their meals there.

The president also aroused much interest by exhibiting a series of charts showing the relative scholarship rank of fraternity and non-fraternity men in the four-year courses for the last three years. The non-fraternity men led, with a percentage of 76.31, while the fraternity men had an average of 72.70. The general average for all students was 74.44. All classes have shown steady improvement the last year.

Farmers of this state have wondered this fall why their apples are so much smaller than they were last year. Professor J. H. Gourley, head of the college department of horticulture, says in explanation:

"In many sections throughout this state it has been observed that the fruit ran smaller than usual this year in some cases very much smaller. Toward the end of the season the fruit dropped rather badly, especially on some of the very light soils. This was a very serious matter, as the price of No. 2 apples has been very low this year."

"The primary cause of the fruit's running small is of course traceable directly to the drought we experienced the latter part of the growing season. The apples would have filled out in size very much if we had had some rains the latter part of August or early in September. It is interesting to notice what takes place in trees when we experience a drought, especially on light lands. The more vigorous the trees the more foliage there is to supply moisture to and these leaves continue to transpire the moisture in a greater quantity than the roots can supply. When this point is reached the leaves will then draw on the moisture from the apples, thereby causing the apples to remain small, even showing a tendency to shrivel in some extreme cases, and finally to mature early and consequently fall from the trees."

"If two small branches are broken from a fruit tree, on one of which some fruit is hanging, and the broken ends of the branches covered with paraffine, it will be found after a time that the leaves will become wilted much quicker on the branch which does not have fruit than on the one which does. This is true with apples, grapes, peaches, tomatoes, watermelons, or in fact with practically all plants bearing fruit, and will account in many cases for what has happened with the apple crop this year."

Financial aid from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Extension Service of New Hampshire State College to the amount of $1200, per year for each county is now available to aid the farmers of four more New Hampshire counties in securing the services of a county agricultural agent and the first to comply with the requirements will be the lucky ones. Two counties, Sullivan and Cheshire, have already taken advantage of this assistance and farmers report that the work of the county agents is proving of great practical value. State leader J. B. Abbott of Durham is assisting the farmers of other counties to organize and expects to have four more county agents at work before spring.

A Cheshire county farmer asked county agent P. N. Darling how he could keep apple pomace in the silo without fermentation. Mr. Darling referred the matter to the state college but before he got a reply he secured the information from an entirely unexpected source. A retired farmer from Claremont told him that it could be kept in perfect condition by placing it in the silo in thin layers alternating with oats straw thoroughly wet down, and furthermore that the resulting silage would be fully the equal of corn silage in feeding value. To prove his statement the gentleman produced a letter written him over twenty years ago by the New Hampshire experiment station chemist, who had at his request analyzed a sample.

MAY NOT COME TO CORNISH
NEXT SUMMER

Washington, Nov. 4.—What to do for a summer White House next year is a problem which President Wilson must soon face. His lease on Harlakenden house in the Cornish, N. H., places expires this year, and whether he will see fit to renew it is a secret which he alone shares. His closest friends believe he will select some other place. Moreover, in various sections of the country there are movements afoot to erect or select a permanent summer White House.

As far as President Wilson is concerned the problem of getting such a place causes him little concern. But next year, with only a short session of Congress in sight, he may have more opportunity than heretofore for vacationing. This season he has been able to take only a pleasant vacation. On three occasions he has elected to go to Harlakenden House, where his family has sojourned for several months. And the trips have done him good, brief though they were. He liked the seclusion of the beautiful home overlooking the Connecticut river and commanding a striking view of the Green mountains beyond. The pleasant rides in the immediate vicinity, the bracing air, the lack of intrusion, the ability to get a good golf links at Hanover, N. H., only 15 miles away, have combined to make the spot ideal in the President's mind.

The only real drawback has been the hardship of the 4-hour trip from Washington—and in a private car with everything from meals to bed and bath de luxe it isn't such a hardship after all.

But now it is possible that he will prefer a change of scene for his next year's vacationing.

PAVING JOB WILL BE FINISHED SOON.

Bridge and Deer Streets Will be Finished by Night.

The paving job is well along to the finishing point, for by this evening Bridge and Deer streets will be all finished, and another week will finish the Islington streets part. Wednesday evening the top roasting had been laid as far as Hanover or Deer street and a full day will finish it to Islington street and all will be open for travel tomorrow.

The concrete work has been pushed along fast on Islington street, and it will be finished this week. The top coating of bitulithic will be started by Friday on Islington street and the contractors figure that by laying a thousand yards a day they will finish Islington street in a week. The contractors are the most thorough that have ever worked in this city and their plant here is the best equipped. The contract with the city is that they will guarantee the top coat for a period of five years.

DON'T INJURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Take a Teaspoonful of Rheumalits for Lame Back or Bladder Trouble

Do you occasionally have a "crick" in your back? Does your back ache with a dull, heavy, racking thro? Is it hard to straighten up after stooping? Is it hard to rise from a seat or to turn quickly?

If you are bothered in this way, then your kidneys need attention. No doubt your blood is filled with uric acid. This irritating acid has caused your kidneys to become weak from overwork. It has made them sluggish, the liver and bowels are clogged, and the waste which should be drained from the system is retained in the blood to poison the entire body.

Kidney diseases start mysteriously and sometimes lead to Dropsy and Bright's Disease.

At the first "pain in the back" get from your druggist about two ounces of Rheumalits. Take two teaspoonfuls in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your back will feel fine, because your kidneys are working right.

Rheumalits is a wonderful effectiveness! It is a drink which helps the weakened kidneys, and cleans out the liver and stomach of toxins and poisons and leaves the intestinal canal clean and sweet. It is delightful to the taste. It is an absolutely harmless uric acid solvent as well as a saline laxative. Acts quickly without griping or nausea.

lod of five years. The work of mixing the bitulithic at the plant off Hartlett street is carefully watched and twice each day samples of the mixture are taken and sent to the company's laboratories and any change is immediately noted and corrected.

Deer street has been open for some days and everybody is most favorably impressed with the surface.

BAD BLOW TO ENGLISH FLEET

Valparaiso, Chili, Nov. 4.—Great Britain today is suffering from the smart of a fresh blow to her naval supremacy at the hands of the Germans. The armored cruiser Monmouth has been sunk off Coronel, the armored cruiser Good Hope badly damaged and supposed to have been lost, and the protected cruiser Glasgow also badly damaged and now bottled up.

The battle occurred Sunday evening. The British ships were attacked by the German armored cruisers Gueben and Scharnhorst and the protected cruisers Nürnberg, Leipzig and Dresden.

The Scharnhorst, Nürnberg and Gueben anchored at noon yesterday in Valparaiso harbor unhurt.

The Scharnhorst, Gueben and Nürnberg were still in the harbor early today, coaling and provisioning, in preparation for steaming away later in the day. It is supposed they will relieve the cruisers Leipzig and Bremen, which have the Glasgow and Otranto bottled up in the port of Talcahuano, eight miles northwest of Concepcion.

It would seem like madness for these British ships to leave this haven of refuge, and it is likely they will be dismantled and interned unless a superior British and Japanese fleet should quickly make its appearance and go to their relief.

Admiral Graf von Spee, commander of the German fleet in Pacific waters, arrived here yesterday morning and made the following report concerning the engagement:

"On Sunday, Nov. 1, between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening, during a heavy rain and rough weather off Coronel we sighted the British men-of-war Good Hope, Monmouth and Glasgow and the armored cruiser Otranto."

"An engagement ensued immediately. All the ships opened a brisk cannonade with all their artillery."

"The Monmouth was sunk and the Good Hope, after a great explosion on board, took fire. Her subsequent fate is unknown owing to darkness having set in."

"The Glasgow and the Otranto (no such vessel as the Otranto is listed in Jane's 'Fighting Ships') also were damaged, but the darkness prevented our obtaining knowledge of the extent of it."

"Of our ships, the Scharnhorst and Nürnberg were not damaged. The Gueben had six men wounded. The rest of our ships also were undamaged."

HELD SMOKE TALK

Alpha Council, Royal Arcanum, held a smoke talk at their hall on Wednesday evening and an interesting evening was enjoyed. A clam chowder with all the fixings was served.

Ask Any Sickie Smoker Why

he sticks to Sickie plug and slices off each pipeful as he needs it, when he could get tobacco already cut up, in packages. He'll tell you, "because the Sickie way is the only way to get fresh tobacco, that smokes cool and sweet, and doesn't bite the tongue." He knows.

Tobacco that is cut up at the factory gets dried up on its way to you. Result—it burns fast and hot, and "bites." When you cut your own tobacco off the Sickie plug, you are well repaid for a minute's work by fresh tobacco—because all the flavor and moisture are pressed into the plug and held in by the natural leaf wrapper.

Get a plug of Sickie at your dealer's today. Notice how much more tobacco you get, when you don't have to pay for a package.

Misplacing the Responsibility.

A contemporary in commenting upon the Carman murder trial on Long Island, in which the jury disagreed, says the affair was bungled at the outset by the police officials, that a radical hunt for evidence was begun too late, that the scent was cold and the opportunity lost long before any energetic or intelligent work was done. And to this the following is added: "It is a weak spot in our criminal system that in cases outside the metropolis initial investigation is generally in the hands of men whose work is little better than amateurish. Shocking crimes constantly go unpunished, and on the other hand innocent persons are often subjected to gross wrong."

The only inference to be drawn from this is that the miscarriage of justice, which is so frequent in this country as to be nothing short of disgraceful, is chargeable chiefly to the police authorities and officers. They are accused of laxness, ignorance and bungling to an extent which allows many criminals to escape justice, while in many cases the innocent are made to suffer.

That there are instances of this sort there can be no doubt, but that the miscarriage of justice is as a rule due to inefficiency of the police and detective forces there is no ground to believe. Our contemporary contends that this bungling work, "outside the metropolis," is the weak spot in our criminal system.

If poor work on the part of the officers of the law is to be held responsible for miscarriages of justice, what shall be said of such as that of Harry K. Thaw, who in the presence of a large assemblage of people shot a man dead, not "outside the metropolis," but in the very heart of it, and escaped the penalty for murder. There was no lack of evidence in that case. The scent was not cold nor the opportunity lost before it was known who was guilty of that murder, as cold-blooded as any in the history of the country, and yet where did justice come in?

Police officers have enough to contend with without being called upon to shoulder responsibilities that belong to others. Their work, in and out of the metropolis, is usually prompt and efficient, and if the rest of the legal machinery would work as well there would be fewer escapes from richly merited penalties and there would be greater respect for the law and its representatives than there is today or ever will be so long as technicalities, inexcusable delays and legal stratagems are permitted to block the wheels of justice.

The Compliment Paid Our Senior Senator.

The compliments paid United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger by the people of New Hampshire was more than deserved and it was all due him. No man stands higher in the estimation of his friends. He has been a loyal representative of the State and has been honest and faithful. He stands for New Hampshire and her industries and he has witnessed his reward at the hands of the people. The voters showed their disapproval of the methods of Henry Hollis to injure him and also of the wilful misrepresentation of the Democratic speakers. They failed to fool the voters.

The People and Hollis.

Senator Henry F. Hollis can thank his lucky stars that the people did not get a chance to pay their respects to him directly. They may have a chance later, but he must feel like patting himself on the back and working for an increase of pay for the Republicans that made his election as Senator possible. The voters of the state would never have given him the election and Tuesday they paid their respects to him in no mistaken terms.

The People Getting Back on Duty.

The people can be depended upon to get back on the right track when they discover their mistake. This was demonstrated on Tuesday last. This country really is solid Republican and the people are thoroughly disgusted with the way the affairs of the Nation have been handled. The citizens of New Hampshire have been dissatisfied with the manner in which the business has been handled.

No Use for the Stevens Kind.

The political career of one Raymond B. Stevens was short-lived and well it might be. New Hampshire has no use for the type of individual that he represented. He misrepresented the Old Granite State.

Norway went in for prohibition when the war broke out, but the people are already sick of it and the newspapers are calling loudly on the government to rescind the ordinance, the decision there being made by the government and not by the people. The leading argument for returning to former conditions has a familiar sound in this country. It is that prohibition doesn't prohibit.

THE BELOVED ADVENTURER

CHAPTER VII. The Hold-Up.

The light locomotive began to labor as it heaved a long grade, and a spattering rain of soft-coal cinders soon made the rear platform even less inviting than the dusty and uncomfortable day coach. Lord Cecil, his blind optimism somewhat wilted by a thousand miles of cheap travel, turned and sought refuge in the cot.

As he dropped wearily into his seat, Cecil became conscious of an eager, wistful smile directed toward him, and automatically his features assumed that blankness and his eyes that unseeing stare with which the Briton is wont to repel the advances of presumptuous strangers. The smile pathetically faded, and the stranger shrank humbly. Then Cecil observed how lined was the old face, toll and sorrow having graven deep, and yet not blotted out a sweetness and patience that lent dignity to the rather weak mouth, and how neat was the shabby, old-fashioned clothing. That kindly smile, whimsically tender, well known to many children and woman-kind, but seldom seen by men, flashed into Cecil's eyes, and the old man quickly rose to take the place silently offered by Cecil's movement to the end of the seat.

"You'll excuse me, stranger, but I'm so full of happiness I got to let it bubble out to anybody that'll listen," the old fellow said, and his manner was quaintly boyish. Cecil nodded sympathetically.

"My name is Silas Meggs. I was born and raised in Shadydale—we'll stop there 'bout three hours from now," the old man gossiped. "You know Shadydale? No, I reckon you don't—it ain't much of a place, after all, but it's mighty homey an' restful when a feller goes back after forty years, most nights, of longin'."

Almost shyly Silas produced from his pocket a small, worn case, opening it to disclose an old-fashioned portrait, somewhat faded except for the brightly tinted lips and cheeks of a pretty girl, who, one would safely guess, would be sweet and gentle, but not strong except in the passive patience which is sometimes the rather terrible strength of the weak.

"Jane, she was my sweetheart, near two-score years ago," Silas said softly, and paused to dream.

"I was but a laborer, she was the banker's child," he presently continued. "I was an orphan, workin' for day wages, an' they pretty poor, for farmers round about. She was the belle of the village, and might 'a' had her pick of twenty men, some of them the richest in the county, but, she loved me, and we'd meet when we could unbeknown to her father. 'Course I didn't dare go to her house, me being but a hired man, and old Henderson the rich banker. Out in the big world, he might n't a counted so much, but he was the great man o' Shadydale, and terrible haughty."

"How it all might have ended, I don't know. Old Henderson would never have dreamed of takin' me into his family, an' Jane was not the kind to defy him. Anyway, it all come to a sudden head through Lawyer Grady, that was old enough to be the girl's father himself askin' Henderson if he might have Jane for wife. Henderson was fair pleased, Grady bein' rich, through mortgages on widows' farms, and such like, and told Jane she was to take him. Soon as she could slip away, Jane came to meet me, an' weep that she didn't know what to do. 'No more did I, when she said she didn't dare run off with me. She was cryin' in my arms when old Henderson came stormin' up, followed by Grady, who had seen us together, and hurried to tell her father. He ordered her to go to the house and to her room, and that was the last I saw of her, stumbling along, blinded by tears. Me, he drove off like I was a tramp, and I—I just went. You see, I wasn't much more 'an a boy, an' had always been made to feel humble, an' he was the great man."

"I went back to the place where I worked, bitter and heavy-hearted. My only comfort was the belief that Jane truly loved me. I thought my heart would just break when I read the note Henderson's hired man brought to me. It was from Jane, and said as how, havin' come to realize how degradin' was acquaintance with a person of my class, she would henceforth regard me as a total stranger, from whom any communication would be offensive."

"I guess I was near crazy with anger and grief, an' couldn't think, else I would have known that sweet little Jane never willingly wrote that note, that she would be known would break my heart. The only thing I could think was to get far away, and in an hour I was ready, and on the road. As I tramped away toward the sunset, I mind I looked at the old hollow tree where we was used to hide notes for each other. I thought of the last one I had found there, and the words in it—all love and promises to always be true—and I laughed, and went on. If I had only looked in the hollow of that old tree—"

"It was a weary road I followed, Stranger, for I carried a burden of sorrow that I could not lose. I could not forget. For nigh forty years I drifted about in the gold-fields of the West, graving, old, and never forgetting. I never had much luck, but I didn't care. I never heard any news from Shadydale."

"At last I made a little strike—not big, but enough to take care of me as long as I might likely live, and I felt suddenly tired out, and something kept pulling, pulling at me, drawin' me back to Shadydale."

"At last I went, and the village was just the same, except for the folks I met. They were all different, and nobody knew me. I stopped to look at the old Henderson place, and a woman that must 'a' been a baby when I went away, was foolin' about in the yard. She told me that old Henderson had died long ago—had lost his fortune, every cent, and it killed him—and that Jane—Old Maid Jane she called her—was still livin'—had never married, but waited always for a lover who went away and never came back."

"Then something seemed to snap inside, and my heart commenced to pound like it would choke me. Straight to the old hollow tree I went—and it was just the same—and in the old tin can hidden in the hollow I found a note, yellow and crumblin' in my fingers, but still to be read. Jane had written it as soon as she could after writing, as her father stood over her and told her the words, the note that had sent me away. It told me that she did love me, and always would—that she knew I would realize that that other note was forced from her, and that I would look in the old tree for her true heart's message. And I had not looked!"

"I found her—my Jane—on the poor farm! Her hair was white, but to me she was as fair as on the day she first kissed me, forty years ago, and when I looked into her eyes, I saw the same light shining."

"Now you'll understand, Stranger, why I'm kinder foolish, maybe. It gets a feller sort of stirred up, bubbly like, to suddenly find that he is to be happy at the end of such a sad and long

CURRENT OPINION

Purpose of College is to Teach Men to See Life in Its Larger Significance.

The college ideal is the whole man, A WELL DEVELOPED BODY AND A WELL FURNISHED MIND, both under the enlightened control of a generous spirit, a wide, sweeping, WELL ROUNDED ARCH OF PERSONALITY, with no weak nor faulty stone in its structure to imperil its lasting stability.

COLLEGE BRINGS YOUNG MEN TOGETHER AT AN AGE WHEN PHYSICAL AND MENTAL ACTIVITY ARE BOTH APPROACHING THE HIGHEST STAGE. THE ROOTS OF CHARACTER ARE SETTLING INTO THE DEEPER GROUND FROM WHICH IN LATER YEARS THE FULL GROWN MAN WILL DRAW HIS SUSTENANCE. THE COLLEGE AIMS TO BRING MEN TOGETHER IN A GENEROUS AND MANLY COMRADESHIP WHERE THERE IS FRIENDLY RIVALRY, BUT THE PRIZES SOUGHT ARE UNSELFISH. THERE IS NOTHING SORDID IN THEM, NONE SEEK AN UNWORTHY ADVANTAGE OVER ANOTHER, VICTORY FINDS APPLAUSE AND EARNED EFFORT WINS RESPECT.

The purpose of the college, then, is to prepare men for life—the life of their own day; to teach them to see life in its larger and more lasting significance, "to see it steadily and to see it whole," to MAKE THE MIND A TRAINED INSTRUMENT in the firm grasp of a steadfast will, which is in the spirit, and to quicken the spirit through the understanding is its larger task.—By Ernest Fox Nichols, President Dartmouth College.

journey, when he wasn't lookin' for anything but the same old aching pain. For we are goin' to be happy, my old sweetheart and me. I've sold my claim for enough to buy a snug little cottage, and take care o' us, as long as we live. I've got it right here in this old bill-book, the price of happiness, and peace, and rest, for me and Jane."

From his coat old Silas produced a fat pocketbook, patted it fondly, and carefully slowed it away. He lapsed into a happy reverie. Cecil smiled, with moist eyes. On the seat just in front, a man sat with hat pulled low over furtive, glittering glances. This man was sometimes known as Sykes. However, he really was entitled to the honorary title generally bestowed—his friends and admirers invariably referred to him as "Bad" Sykes. Bad Sykes' thin lips writhed into a grin of eager greed.

Ahead of the locomotive, a man suddenly stepped into the middle of the track and waved a red flag. The emergency brakes screamed, and the train came to a bumping halt. The erstwhile flagman covered the engine crew with two heavy Colts. Several stubble-bearded gentlemen suddenly arose from the bushes alongside the track, and climbed into the express car as though on imperative business.

At the first bite of the brakes Bad Sykes had thrown aside his mask of repose. He arose swiftly, with both hands "filled."

"All hands up—keep 'em up—march out the back door an' line up 'long the track!" he ordered, and was obeyed.

Lord Cecil felt distinctly gratified. This was just the sort of thing one had a right to expect in America. Personally, he could suffer little from any number of hold-ups, his money being of such denominations and quantity as would have provoked the contempt of a sneak-thief. Really, they would think it deucedly amusing at the club.

Cecil was at the end of the line which had formed up along the right of way. Next him was old Silas. Mr. Sykes had begun at the other end, and worked his way down with despatch, the passengers dropping their valuables, almost with eagerness, it seemed, into the bag which was held to receive them. Silas contributed a small roll of bills with shaling hand.

"Did up that wallet, 'quick!" Mr. Sykes snarled, and his revolver menaced. Old Silas glanced about wildly, as though "contemplating flight"—but the black muzzle stared unblinkingly into his face.

"Quick!" Mr. Sykes prompted, and about his eyes came the tiny puckers that just precede the tightening of a finger on a trigger. With the joy of life stricken from his face, old Silas dropped the wallet into the gaping bag.

"An' that watch," Mr. Sykes prompted Lord Cecil, and the watch was added to the booty.

"Oh, God! My Jane—I can't take you now—always—the poor-farm!"

The broken, sobbing whisper was close at Lord Cecil's side. A flame seemed to leap through his veins, and for an instant a red veil obscured his vision. There was a movement in the line, toward the other end.

"Keep still, there!" Mr. Sykes roared, and turned his eyes and gun toward the disorder.

To the point of the jaw, swiftly, Lord Cecil struck, and Bad Sykes dropped suddenly. In an instant Cecil had possessed himself of his guns.

"Keep still, everyone!" He this chap! Watch the bag!" he snapped, and ducked under the couch.

With swift lightness, Lord Cecil ran the length of the train. As he slipped round the engine, the bandit guarding the crew sprang back with a startled yell, and his bullet cut a lock from Cecil's head. Then he pitched stiffly onto his face, and Cecil, a flaming weapon in either hand, was facing the storm of bullets sent at him by the bandits leaping from the express car.

Suddenly the battle was at an end. One of the men by the express car dropped with a stifled moan—the engine crew, possessing themselves of the guns of the first dead outlaw had come valiantly to Cecil's support—the remaining outlaws, the spirit gone from them, threw their arms upon the ground.

Two hours later the train slowed down and came to a jolting stop. Upon the rear platform, old Silas Meggs grasped eagerly the hand that Lord Cecil extended.

"I—I'd thank you, sir, if I could," he gulped. "And, Jane—she'll be waitin' for me—she'd thank you. It isn't only the money we'll owe to you, but the happiness for which we've waited so long."

Then upon Lord Cecil descended that shyness and horror of spoken thanks which is the hallmark of his caste, and on his face was that "blankness" with which the men of his breed are fain to hide what may stir their hearts. Abruptly he disengaged his hand.

"My good man, don't mention it," he said. "Really, there was nothing else to do—the impudent fellow had taken my watch, y'know."

But Lord Cecil lingered upon the platform, in the rain of soft-coal cinders, until distance hid the waving hands of Silas Meggs, and a sweet-faced old woman with softly shining eyes.

WILL HOLD CONFERENCE

Women's Clubs of This Section Will Discuss Civic and Social Welfare.

The Women's Clubs of this vicinity will hold a large conference on Civic and Social Welfare in Association hall this Friday.

This will include clubs from North Hampton, Hampton, Hampton Falls, Seabrook, Stratham, Greenland, Rye, Milton, Farmington, Newington, Dover, Somersworth, Rochester, South Berwick, Kittery, Kittery Point, New Castle and Durham, as well as other towns in this vicinity. A large attendance is expected as the clubs will attend in a body.

At 10:30 o'clock the morning session will open and will be devoted to civics. Mr. Samuel P. Hun of Manchester, chairman of the civic committee of the state Federation of Women's Clubs will preside, and address the conference on "The Civic Responsibility of New Hampshire Women." There will be other well known club women to address the body.

Discussions of the problems of club women will be open to all at both the morning and afternoon sessions.

At 2 o'clock, the "Social Conditions in general, as they exist in New Hampshire will be presented by speakers conversant with them."

The construction of the new sidewalk at the Boston and Maine station has already begun at the western end of the platform.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated By Portsmouth People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one kidney medicine that has earned a reputation for lasting results, and there is plenty of proof of its merit right here in Portsmouth.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now makes his testimony even stronger.

Mrs. Arthur M. Morrison, 99 Gate St., Portsmouth, says: "I had pains in my back and sides. My kidneys were weak and often I had nervous and dizzy spells. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and used some. It wasn't long before they completely cured me. The cure has been permanent. You may continue publishing the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills before."

When the manufacturer's advertisement appears in the newspaper it is "among friends." The local advertisers are personally known to many of the readers. Their stores are familiar, their advertising an old standby. The new advertiser gets the benefit of being in this good company. Like the new member he gets all the prestige of the lodge. It is only one of many reasons why newspaper advertising is so effective to the national advertiser.

PYTHIAN CONVENTION

Members of First Maine District Handsomely Entertained at South Berwick.

On Wednesday evening the Pythians of the First Maine district, which includes Constitution Lodge, No. 88, of Kittery, Rathbone Lodge of Berwick and Quamphagan Lodge of South Berwick, held a district convention with the latter lodge at South Berwick which was one of the most largely attended and successful of any ever held in the district. The members of Constitution Lodge to the number of fifty went to South Berwick by special car, arriving there shortly before 8 o'clock. The convention was presided over by District Deputy Grand Chancellor Mark Keene of Constitution Lodge and he is to be congratulated on the manner in which all the details were carried out. The special guests of the evening were Grand Chancellor Wilson and Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Brown.

The rank of Page was conferred by the rank staff of Constitution Lodge under the direction of Dr. H. I. Durgin. Fred W. Cross and the rounds of applause that greeted the members of the team at the conclusion of the floor work attested to its excellence. It is doubtful if any lodge in the grand domain of Maine has a better first rank team and the members were highly complimented by Grand Chancellor Wilson on the excellence of their work. Following the work interesting remarks were made by Grand Chancellor Wilson, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Brown, Dr. H. I. Durgin, Charles R. Wagsatt and others.

At 10:45 the assemblage repaired to the banquet hall where an appetizing repast consisting of cold meats, baked beans, salads, rolls, pies, assorted cake, fruit and coffee was served.

At 11:40 the members of Constitution Lodge took their special car for home, arriving in Kittery about 1 o'clock. All who attended were loud in their praise of the manner in which the details of the convention were carried out by the efficient committee, headed by District Deputy Grand Chancellor Keene.

RESIGNS FROM DEPARTMENT

David E. Jenkins has resigned from the Portsmouth fire department after serving 25 years. He was a member of Col. Sise Engine Company and attached to the hook and ladder. His place will be filled by Richard Hersey. Mr. Hersey is the son of Francis Hersey, who has been connected with the fire department a son call man for the past forty years.

Breezy Items from the Village Across the River.

Any news item telephoned to 897-Y will be greatly appreciated by your correspondent.

Gordon S., the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Blaney of Prince Avenue, passed away Wednesday afternoon. He was taken suddenly ill Tuesday, and his condition became so serious that Dr. H. I. Durgin was called early Wednesday morning. At noon a consultation between Doctors Durgin and Carly was held, shortly after which the little one passed away. The funeral services will be held at the home on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the family cemetery at Elliot under the direction of O. W. Ham.

The funeral services of Patricia Louise, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy L. Nott, of the Intervene, who died on Tuesday evening, were held this afternoon at the home of her parents. Interment was in Calvary cemetery, Portsmouth, under the direction of William P. Miskell.

On Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Sunday school class of the Rev. C. J. Yeomans will hold a meeting in the vestry of the Second Christian church. At this time the class will organize and plans for the future will be made. Following a banquet will be served. A large attendance of the young, as well as the older men is desired.

There will be a meeting of E. G. Parker Post, G. A. R., this evening in Odd Fellows' hall.

Mr. Daniel R. Cook of the Junction is still confined to his room on account of illness.

Mrs. Charles Long of Portsmouth was the guest of relatives in town on Wednesday.

A delegation from Constitution Lodge, No. 88, Knights of Pythias, attended the district convention held at Berwick Wednesday evening. A full account will be found in another column.

Mr. Wallace Putnam went to Newburyport on Wednesday evening to attend the funeral of his grandfather, which takes place today.

Mrs. W. N. Phiney of the Navy Yard is passing a few weeks in Boston, the guest of relatives.

This evening an adjourned business meeting of the Christian Endeavor will be held in the vestry of the Second Christian church at 7:30 o'clock. A large attendance is desired.

Don't fail to attend the Cafeteria lunch to be given by the Phobes this evening in the vestry of the Second Christian church. Lunch will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock, following which will be an entertainment.

Mrs. G. M. Jewell of the Intervene has returned from a visit in New York and Boston.

Mrs. James Gerry of Commercial street left this morning for Auburn, N. H., where she will visit her mother.

Mrs. Nellie Blake of Wentworth street was called to Newburyport Wednesday, by the death of her father, Mr. James Corey, an old resident of that city.

St. Aspinquid Tribe of Red Men will meet in Grange hall this evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Locke is visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. Calvin Dunbar of Wentworth street.

Mrs. Kelley Lyons of Locke's Cove is still confined to her home on account of illness.

FIRST MEETING OF SEASON.

The Gracfort Club held its first meeting of the season on Wednesday afternoon, with a large attendance.

The business session was held and the programs distributed. The reports of the state meeting were read and accepted.

The outlook at present anticipates a most successful year. The open meetings will be exceptionally interesting this year. Announcement will be made later of the lecture course.

Two drunks and two for sale kepting on the police blotter Wednesday night.

ARGUE MILEAGE RATE CASE TODAY

Maine Central Road Goes Before State Supreme Court on Question.

The case of the Maine Central railroad in which the New Hampshire statute requiring the issuance of a 500 mile mileage book at two cents a mile is alleged to be unconstitutional and the rate declared contrary and unreasonable will be argued before the supreme court at Concord today. Attorney General James P. Tullis will argue for the state and George E. Morris of Lancaster for the railroad.

The case of the Maine Central is much broader in its scope than the Boston and Maine and the Grand Trunk cases now pending in the United States district court. It embraces the same question of constitutionality involved in the other case but goes further, turning the law confiscatory and unreasonable, neither of which is contended in the Boston and Maine and Grand Trunk cases.

If the position of the railroad should be sustained by the state court of law by the United States supreme court if the state court should decide against the railroad contention, the Boston and Maine and Grand Trunk cases would naturally end, as their claim of the unconstitutionality of the legislative enactment would be borne out.

The brief of the attorney general in the latter cases will be filed tomorrow with the clerk of the United States district court. It is now in the hands of the printer. General Park S. Steeler filed the brief for the railroad last Saturday.

CHURCH NOTES

The Women's Missionary Society of the Pearl Street church met with Mrs. Albert Plummer at her home No. 5 Baynes avenue, at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. The program consisted of reading and discussing the new text book "The Child in the World." The literary program was followed by a social. The usual supper was served at 5 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the Women's Guild, connected with the North Congregational church was held on Monday afternoon and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. L. H. Thayer; vice-president, Mrs. Edward Adams; secretary, Mrs. William Cate; treasurer, Mrs. Ira St. Clair.

Reports of the various societies were presented and accepted. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by Mrs. Robert Lloyd and Mrs. A. G. Brewster.

This Thursday afternoon will be observed at Rally Day by the Rogers Mission Circle at the North church chapel at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Thomas D. Noyes is the chairman of the Circle.

The Benevolent Society of the Court Street Christian church meets this afternoon and the usual supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church served an excellent chicken pie dinner in the vestry of the church on Wednesday from 12 to 2 o'clock, which was attended by over two hundred. The menu embraced the following appetizing viands: Chicken pie, cranberry sauce, mashed potato, squash, celery, apple, lemon, squash, Mince and mock cherry pie, fruit, tea and coffee. The committee who presided in the kitchen consisted of Mrs. George H. Chadwick, chairman; Mrs. Rachael Pecunius, Miss Edith M. Paul, Mrs. Orintha Carl, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. Rose Kellenbeck, Mrs. Daisy Robinson, Mrs. Annie Watkins, and Mrs. Jack McIntire. The dining room was in charge of Mrs. Annie Parmenter. Her corps of efficient waitresses consisted of Mrs. Helen Hillon, Miss Carrie Hickey, Mrs. Laura Nichols, Mrs. Geneva Packard, Mrs. Henrietta Norton, Mrs. Florence Crossley, Mrs. Leslie Davis, Mrs. Alice Davis, Mrs. Mary Bridle, Mrs. Annie Penny, Mrs. Walter Staples, Mrs. Belle Grant, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Cloutman, and Mrs. Mildred Thompson. Mrs. J. Howard Grover, president of the Ladies' Aid was general chairman. Mrs. Lang had charge of the tickets.

The Benevolent Society of the Court Street Christian church will have an excellent entertainment at the church on Tuesday evening November 10th. Miss Vivian who is the reader, made her first appearance here with the Shubert Male Quartet at High School Assembly Hall a few weeks ago, will again delight her audience.

Mr. Frederick Perry of the Colonial Male Quartet of Boston will be the singer. With this excellent talent the public is assured of a fine treat.

Alexander Bilbruck gave a delightful organ recital in the chapel of the Unitarian church on Tuesday evening, and was assisted by Mrs. Oliver W. Priest, contralto, and William G. Green, Violoncello. The following was the order of selections: Overture to "William Tell" Rossini

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Advent church met with Mrs. Adolph Anderson at her home on Myrtle avenue on Wednesday afternoon.

The Epworth League Society of the Methodist parish held a social in the vestry on Monday evening. The affair was in the nature of a Halloween celebration and everyone enjoyed an evening of much merriment. Decorations pertinent to the Halloween festival were conspicuous and very tastefully arranged. The following pleasing program was rendered:

Piano solo... Miss Margarette Jeaness
Vocal solo... D. Harry Crossley
Reading... Miss Mae Warren
Vocal duet.....

Mr. and Mrs. D. Harry Crossley
Refreshments of ices, wafers, popcorn and salted nuts were served. Mrs. Harry L. Hillon was the chairman of arrangements.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting in the vestry on Wednesday afternoon. A business session was held when it was voted to hold a Christmas sale in Freeman's Annex on December 2nd. A supper followed and was in charge of Mrs. Charles Jeaness, Miss Carrie Hickey, Mrs. Peenias and Mrs. Kennedybeck. At the conclusion of supper an experience social was held. Much one present, brought a dollar, and each one told a novel way in which it was earned. Much merriment was derived and a good sum realized.

PEOPLES' OPINION

What It Means.

The election has thrilled the country. Business men everywhere are feeling better. The result is a good deal more than a party triumph. It tells the world that the people can be relied on to govern themselves in a sane and helpful manner once let them see just what the issue really is.

To many a man's mind has come today a remembrance of the oft-quoted saying by Abraham Lincoln as to the impossibility of fooling the people "all the time." The voters have passed judgment upon the administration of Woodrow Wilson and William J. Bryan. The Democratic leaders all through the campaign insisted that the people were being misled upon to stand by the President, who has given us "peace"—and prosperity.

Nobody can mistake the verdict. The foolish cutting down of tariff rates, throwing our workmen out of employment, stands condemned. The feeble, unpatriotic course of the administration in its handling of the Mexican situation, has met with a just rebuke. The country has plainly said that the Democratic leaders are incapable of governing. They do not understand the American people. They have been taught a lesson.

New Hampshire has good reason to be proud. Many an old-fashioned Democrat has come forward, and with a courage worthy of all praise, has voted for Republican candidates. The election of Senator Chaffee will be received gratefully by the country at large. It signifies an intelligence and a sound judgment that ranks New Hampshire very high for political wisdom. The vote for State officers is significant. It advertises the fact that the people of New Hampshire know

DEMOCRATS HAVE LOST CONTROL OF CONGRESS

Have Only a Plurality of Two and Socialists and Independents Hold Balance of Power.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Neither Republicans nor Democrats will control the next house of Congress, the National Committee announced this afternoon.

"We claim the election of 213 Republicans, four Progressives, one Independent and two Socialists to the House of Representatives," read the statement, "while the remainder of the seats will be filled by Democrats."

PENROSE BY ONLY 200,000

His Plurality Over Palmer Not Likely to Go Over That Figure—Pinchot About 2000 Behind Democrat.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—The Republican plurality in Pennsylvania for all state candidates continues to increase today as additional returns were received. With sixty per cent of the state heard from the plurality of the

Thus, according to Republican headquarters, the Democrats will have a plurality of two, but in order to get a majority in full vote it would be necessary for them to have at least the two Socialists and the Independent.

Thus the situation, it was pointed out by the Republicans, would probably lead to a most interesting fight on the speakership.

United States Senator Boies Penrose over A. Mitchell Palmer, his Democratic opponent, stood at 180,045, with indications that it will come close to 200,000, if not exceeding those figures. Gifford Pinchot, Progressive, was about 2000 behind Palmer. Penrose's plurality in Philadelphia alone was 114,888. Pinchot ran 13,000 ahead of Palmer in Philadelphia.

For governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, Republican, had a plurality of 12,900 over Vance C. McQuinn, his Democratic Progressive opponent. Brumbaugh's plurality in Philadelphia was 119,930. The Republicans also elected their candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs and their four nominees for congressmen at large.

AMERICAN RED CROSS

What Is Being Done by the New Hampshire Branch.

Dublin, N. H., Nov. 4.—A visit to the Red Cross storage a (the Bush Terminal is most interesting. There, under the direction of Major Lawton and his assistants, the incoming garments from throughout the country are sorted and packed into large boxes. A large part of the floor is covered with bales of absorbent cotton weighing 50 kilos and costing about twenty cents a pound. Every package is acknowledged. On Thursday there came one from Whitefield, N. H. The last shipment to Archangel by direct Russian ship a few days ago cleared a part of the floor. Upstairs another lot for the Christmas Ship, the Government transport, Jason, to sail about November 10th. All packages for this must be specially marked.

In upper Fifth Avenue, New York, Mr. Henry Phelps has given a store for use of the Red Cross. Here is an exhibition of hospital garments, patterns and hospital supplies. A large number of new members are being secured daily. The exhibit is under the direction of Mrs. Milbank, sister of Miss Buckholder of Little Bear's Head who has done and is doing so much therapeutically for the European Relief Fund.

The various forms of relief work and in amount may be indicated in what Dublin has done. Funds were raised to support two Red Cross nurses for six months. Two nurses have been selected by the New Hampshire Nurse Committee working in connection with Miss Delano in Washington. The nurses are Miss A. C. Lockery, Superintendent Laconia Hospital and Miss M. E. Smith of Concord. They will leave shortly to join the unit going to Serbia. Fifty-four dozen garments have been sent from Dublin many being knitted socks and scarfs, then the women of the village are sending sixty gallons of apple butter made in one of the sugar houses at Mountbrook Farms. Apples were given and collected, then resident and non resident women gave three days to boiling and packing. This goes by the Christmas ship. Any form of preserve or fruit delicacy is greatly prized by the convalescents.

The Women's Club of Nashua is just planning a campaign in the interest of the Relief Fund and several of the sewing societies in the churches are to assist them in the work.

The ladies of Rye have sent a large box for the Belgian children. The ladies visited the mills and purchased mother's lengths or short lengths of cloth for a nominal amount and made one hundred complete suits, bloomers, etc.

During the past week the American Red Cross has cabled $55,000 to various hospitals in Europe, such as the American Ambulance in Paris, the American Hospital at Palsgrave, England, and the American Hospital, Munich. This illustrates the various channels through which the Red Cross reaches the suffering and needy. In contrast, a woman in New York endeavored to arrange a public ball for a special relief fund and was immediately refused the use of the name of the fund for it was learned that she was getting up the ball primarily for a percentage of the receipts.

The Soldiers' Home at Tilton has sent a box of night shirts made by the women employed at the Home in the evenings.

The work is going on in many towns and cities but there are a large number of both cities and towns which it is hoped will fall in line that goods and money may do something for sick and wounded in the countries of our ancestors this coming winter.

WASTING COAL

Over one-fourth of the factory's yearly coal bill is directly controlled by the firemen. In New England a single fireman will burn $40 to $50 worth of coal a day in a 500 horsepower plant. That is $12,000 to $15,000 worth of coal a year. This man receives from $1.75 to $2.50 per day for his work. Depending upon the skill with which he handles his shovel he will waste or save $3000 to $4000 a year of his firm's good money.

Forty-nine managers out of fifty are quite ignorant as to the disposal of this fourth part of their coal bill. A frequent attitude on their part is: "We employ 'good men' and we can't be losing much," and "I guess you will find we are doing as well as the next fellow." In a recent case of this kind I found the firm were wasting over one-quarter of their fuel by wrong operation alone. When the matter was set right, which was quickly done, they expressed themselves as undecided whether to be pleased with the saving or to be overcome with remorse that they had been losing such a large sum of money annually for so long a time.

With the exception of the fireman, I know of no other class of worker who is trusted with the expenditure of $12,000 to $15,000 a year of the firm's money who in the first place received so little as $2 to $3 per day, and in the second place goes wholly unchecked as to the return he makes to his company for the amount expended.—David M. Myers, in The Engineering Magazine for November.

ELIOT

The Little Old Folks Concert to be held in Grange Hall November 19th, in connection with the Congregational fair, will be a feature of the evening, following the supper hour. Thirty-five little folks will take part and under the able direction of Mrs. Foye we have every reason to believe an interesting entertainment will be given.

The forest fire that has been burning for six weeks or more in the vicinity of York, and has since been smouldering, has broken out again and it is with difficulty that it is kept from spreading to the residential section.

The banns have been published for the marriage of Mrs. Mamie Cook McCloud and Horace Stacey, the wedding to take place within a few days. They will reside in Eliot at the Stacey home where everything is in readiness to receive the bridal couple. Best wishes are extended to them by the hosts of friends, for both have been residents of Eliot for many years. Mr. Stacey is a prosperous farmer.

Mr. James Boyd of Mitchell, Me., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hooper. Mr. Boyd was a former resident of Eliot.

The ladies of the Congregational church met on Wednesday at the vestry to prepare the decorations for the fair to be held in Grange Hall on the 19th of this month. Many beautiful and serviceable articles are already for the various booths. Let nothing keep you from attending for this is to be one of the many good things that the church will have this season.

Mrs. Joe Martin, who tripped and fell over a rug in her home a few days ago is still in a helpless condition, being unable to lie down, except for short periods.

Mr. Arnold Grant and mother of Limerick, Me., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ireland. Mrs. Grant is an aunt of Mrs. Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hobbs and family are spending the winter in Florida. Ward has been received from Mrs. Hobbs from Jacksonville, where they stopped for a week en route to Petersburg and Tampa. Mrs. Hobbs speaks of the chilliness of the evening, and early morning. The evidence of furs and the display of blankets in the store windows, not unlike those of our own stores. It can be truly said that the temperature of our northern climate up to the present, has been almost ideal, and not so great a difference.

and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flinch, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, frizzy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

ference as one would suppose between the North and South. We are glad to hear from Mrs. Hobbs and trust that from time to time we may have items of interest for our Eliot letter. Mrs. Hobbs is a native of Eliot; a sister of the late Gov. John F. Hill, whose memory we all honor.

We would suggest that Will Hobbs open up a coal and wood yard in this locality, and supply those of us who are obliged to pay such exorbitant prices for coal, which must be hauled either from Kittery or South Eliot. Mr. Hobbs has at least 150 cords of hard and pine wood of the finest quality.

Bert Robbins, our very efficient trombone player is engaged at least three evenings each week for out of town work.

A series of meetings are being held this week at the Advent church. Rev. Frank Hooper, a former pastor of the Advent church in Dover, is in charge and has the assistance of John Gibson of Amesbury, Mass., as soloist. All are cordially invited to attend and it is hoped an interest will be developed which may be fruitful of good results. The rite of baptism was administered to two persons on Sunday last by Rev. Frank Hooper.

Miss Martha W. Dixon has returned from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Mary J. Dixon of Kittery, Maine.

Alphonse Davis was in town yesterday.

Miss Isabelle B. Remick returned Sunday night from a visit in Portland, and Gorham, Me.

Henry C. Knight attended the State convention of teachers held in Portland last week.

Regular meeting of the Men's Club Friday evening at their new quarters in the Egg house.

Several vacant houses in town at present.

Apples are still a drug on the market here. Quite a few have given their orchards over to any one who will pick the fruit for his own use.

CALL FOR WAR ON AMERICANS

Foreigners Should be Driven from Vera Cruz, Says Poster Distributed by Thousands in Mexico City.

Mexico City, Nov. 4.—When it became generally known yesterday that the Washington Government had failed with the request of the Mexican Foreign Office that the United States fix a definite date for the evacuation of Vera Cruz, thousands of proclamations purporting to be signed by Scottish Rite Masons were published calling upon the citizens to arm themselves and drive the invading foreigners from the shores of Mexico.

The Washington note while disavowing any intention on the part of the American Government to occupy Vera Cruz longer than necessary, was firm in the attitude that the central Government of Mexico must definitely guarantee the interests of these Mexican residents of Vera Cruz whose names are said to be listed for ment because of alleged sympathy not in accord with the Constitutionalist movement. The matter of the adjustment of the customs also was insisted upon. It was explained that the proclamation of General Aguilar making certain guarantees was wholly ineffectual for the American Government.

The proclamations, purporting to be signed by Mexican Scottish Rite Masons, kept the police busy arresting boys who were distributing these posters, and tearing off those papers which had been pasted on walls in spite of their vigilance. The proclamation bore the names of many well-known Mexicans.

THE PEACE MEETINGS

Beginning with next Sunday, a number of peace meetings are to be held at Faneuil Hall; and each Sunday, thereafter, prominent speakers will urge the need for a public demand, from the American people, that some halt shall be called in the awful strife across the Atlantic, and some form of mediation accepted. The demand is just, and timely. We do not believe that the great body of people in the countries, now involved in war, want that war to continue to the bitter end, if a way can be opened, at once, to the assurance of lasting peace, and the end of militarism, forever.

We should be glad to see such a united American protest as will reach across the intervening ocean, to the ears of every man and woman in Europe. We should be glad to see such an overwhelming show of popular sentiment as to force the President into open and public acknowledgment of that sentiment. And the moment the President does speak, and his words find their way to the people of Europe, there will come such a show of quick and instant reply as will make every ruler in Europe heed it.

The way to peace is not through timid suggestions to the politicians who are carrying on this war—for it is to their interest to keep the war going to the bitter end—but over their heads to the people, the real source of all political power. The people would be glad to see the end of the war, at once; and if they once realize that the way to the end of all war lies open, today, and within easy reach, they will not allow the politicians much longer to continue the utterly useless and utterly abhorrent and utterly indefensible sacrifice of the lives of the best and bravest among the contending nations.

The Faneuil Hall peace meetings may be the beginning of a great popular movement that will compel disarmament, all over the civilized world.—Boston Advertiser.

EMERY LOVE LETTERS ARE READ ALOUD IN COURT

Contest to Break Will of Late Judge Opened in Boston Wednesday.

The hearing on the Emery will case opened before Judge Pease in the superior court in Boston on Wednesday where the children of the late Judge Samuel W. Emery are asking the court to award them a share in the estate said to be approximately $50,000. Mrs. Mary E. B. Emery, widow of the judge, and Mrs. Lydia J. Emery, who was divorced from Judge Emery in 1893, both appeared as witnesses. The two women sat as far apart from each other as they could get in the court room.

The three children, Samuel W. Emery of Portsmouth, Mrs. Mabel J. Emery Weeks of Amesbury, and Marguerite L. Emery of Portsmouth, alleged fraud and undue influence on the part of Mrs. Mary E. B. Emery, the widow.

In the will, the three contestants were left only $1 each "and no more." Mrs. Lydia J. Emery testified that she sought a divorce from Judge Emery in 1893 on statutory grounds, but at the request of the judge the allegation was changed to extreme cruelty, and she obtained the divorce.

Mrs. Mary E. B. Emery, attired in widow's mourning, was given a seat in the witness box when she testified, as her counsel said she was not in good health. She lived in Portsmouth she stated.

The witness identified a number of ardent love letters written her by Judge Emery before their marriage.

Admits He Stole at Boston Yard

A report of the court martial of Earl W. Robinson, ensign attached to the battleship New Jersey, who admitted he stole Mexican articles from his brother officers, will be sent to Washington this week. It is expected Robinson on the witness stand yesterday, said he did not realize the importance of his actions and could not tell why he stole the things. Medical records were produced showing he had been subject to fainting spells, and epileptic fits. Medical experts today will testify in Robinson's behalf.

You Can't Beat Them

Two clerical employees of the yard are flashing telegrams of their appointment to important positions in Washington, which they expect to take up on December 1. The boys in all departments of the yard are sorry to lose them both, but glad to see that their talents have at last been recognized. Their departure nevertheless will be a decided drawback to society and sporting circles. They refuse to divulge where the pull came from. They will be tendered a reception later by their friends on the yard, and in Portsmouth.

Court Martial Board Ordered

A court martial board has been ordered to convene on the U. S. S. Nashville in connection with a case said to have been brought out of the over-issue of commissary stores.

Will Arrive Here Soon

The U. S. S. Sacramento, is expected to arrive at the yard the latter part of next week, following her latest practice off Hampton Roads.

LOOKING FOR A BAD MAN

Cambridge Officers Hunt Would-be Murderer in This City.

Inspector Russell and Inspector Leahy of the Cambridge police department were in this city a good part of Tuesday where they expected to arrest a would-be murderer, Giuseppe Ceraci, who was reported to have been here. The Cambridge officers had with them an aged Italian, Rosario Merino, the man assaulted, and he presented an awful sight as the result of the attempt made by his assailant to take his life in Cambridge last April. He carries the marks of nearly fifty cuts about his face and body besides an ugly wound where he was shot in the jaw. He claims that he was attacked on the highway by Ceraci, following a card game and some words over a woman. He had letters showing that Ceraci was in this city where he worked as a barber.

The local police gave the out-of-town officers all the assistance possible but the much wanted man had left town only a short time ago. The officers still have a line on his movements and believe that they will round him up in time.

He has a very bad record and the Cambridge officers do not expect to arrest him without some trouble.

DEMOCRATS HAVE MAJORITY

In Both the National House and Senate, It Is Stated.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The Republican Congressional Headquarters issued a statement this afternoon conceding 223 seats to the Democrats, and 201 to the Republicans. This leaves 1 in doubt in Kansas, and 1 in Minnesota, but states that the Progressives have elected 7 and the Socialists 1. An Independent, Kent of California, has been returned. The Democrats have a majority of 12 in the senate, a gain of two.

Margeson Brothers have asked permission to place two electric lights in front of their place of business on Vaughan street and it is understood that other parties are contemplating making similar requests.

It takes very little "pushing" to sell our fifteen dollar suits. They sell themselves. We've never had a larger or snappier line at this price. These suits are certainly not included in the "high cost of living" list of necessities. All the patterns and colorings of "twenty and twenty-five dollar ones" are shown in this line and in models as CORRECT as those of the more expensive grades. This is especially true of the $15.00 Young Men's Suits.

PIANO TALKS

WHAT IS AN OPTIMIST?

"A man who, falling from a fourth-story window, is heard to murmur as he passes the first floor, 'All right so far.'" This reminds us of the deluded individuals who purchase cheap pianos. They think because the instrument looks bright and shiny and seems to "work" pretty well for the first six months or so that it is "all right." They don't realize that the life of a good piano is measured by years, almost a life time, in fact.

Any Piano Makeshift

Will hold together and "go" for a year or two, but how about it after 10, 15 or 25 years of service? When you buy a piano buy the reliable, standard make that has something more than a cheap salesman's recommendation behind it. That kind is sold at
